

ABSTRACT

Methods for consolidation and densification of multi-phase composite structures are provided. These methods allow for more efficient and less expensive consolidation and 5 densification of two- and three-dimensional multi-phase components having more complex geometries.